SUBJECT: Coronavirus Impact to MIL Operations – Update – Essential Business

MIL continues to remain operational during the current Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic that is affecting many businesses across the nation. MIL is deemed to be an Essential Business and will stay operational with Governor Pritzker’s direction to close all non-essential business.

The health and safety of the nation is MIL’s utmost concern and have thus elevated any order that is related to Coronavirus to its top priority. MIL plays an integral part to the manufacturing of respirator equipment, medical supplies, and testing equipment that are saving lives every day. In order to prioritize these orders, purchase orders will need to clearly identify that the work is related to the COVID-19 pandemic.

MIL continues to prioritize Department of Defense (DoD) work in accordance with the Defense Priorities & Allocations System (DPAS). This effort is to ensure the supply of necessary critical resources which are protecting the nation’s borders and medical efforts to the fullest extent possible.

Additionally, MIL requires its vendors to supply critical safety items in order for MIL to continue to support the growing need of critical equipment for the nation. The organization needs to protect our employees in order to assist in the essential business of healthcare and the government.

MIL will continue to prepare for any additional scenarios that may arise. As a trusted service provider, MIL will relay any impact on production as proactively as possible. If you have questions or concerns, please reach out to our main line (847-437-4488) and an available representative will be glad to answer those inquiries. Additionally, customers may use the email address of coronavirusresponseteam@milinc.com for any COVID-19 inquiries.

Sincerely,

Coronavirus Response Team and MIL Management
